

What is PINS?

PINS stands for Partnership for Inclusion of Neurodiversity in Schools.

It provides an opportunity for families, schools, parent support forums and health providers to work together to support neurodivergent children.

This term, we are going to send weekly information about what Neurodiversity is and about how we can all support our children in a variety of ways.

PINS will be providing

- Regular support for schools
- A variety of training packages for staff and parents on a wide range of topics

Please do speak to school if you would like to know more. We are looking forward to working with you all.

PINS PARENT STORIES

Your school is part of the PINS project.

PINS stands for Partnership for Inclusion of Neurodiversity in Schools.

It provides an opportunity for families, schools, parent support forums and health providers to work together to support neurodivergent children.

We are going to send weekly ideas for home, that other parents have said have helped them- please contact us via school with any questions!
